

MEN PLEDGED TO FIGHT WILL WORK FOR CLARK

their statement, in order to have the positive ballot counted for the Taft.

General chairman issued this statement this afternoon:

"The eight delegates-at-large on the Taft ticket headed by Senator Clark, evidently received a clear majority of the votes cast, but a large number were thrown out by election officers owing to the mistake made by many Taft adherents in voting for one delegate instead of eight. This is clearly evidenced by the fact that all the Taft adherents who cast ballots for the same subject which was given to President Taft in the preferential vote. Therefore the Taft League has decided to ask a recount in order to demonstrate the real intention of Republican voters of the State.

"In addition to the delegates-at-large, who were clearly elected on the Taft ticket, seven Taft delegates have been elected from various districts in the State."

President Arthur Henderson of the Cambridge Republican Club declared would ask for a recount of the votes for delegates in the Eighth District. The Taft delegates carried the district by a margin of only forty-five votes, which majority Henderson believed that as a result of the superbly astute work done by the Taft forces in the district the votes for Taft were not good. The preferential vote for Vice-President was counted, and a tie. All sorts of rumors were written by the voters.

Won't Vote for Taft.

The Republican delegates-at-large, all eight of whom were elected at the primary from the Roosevelt side, will not vote for Taft at the Chicago convention, according to statements made today. It is claimed the Roosevelt delegates-at-large will not be influenced by the fact that the Taft delegates will vote for Taft at the Chicago convention. As the city clerk's office in Cambridge is believed that as a result of the superbly astute work done by the Taft forces in the district the votes for Taft were not good. The preferential vote for Vice-President was counted, and a tie. All sorts of rumors were written by the voters.

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like sorting out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said this after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursion en route to California. She traveled alone and met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This good natured official was a well-informed, courteous man, who went all the way through with the party looking after everyone's comfort and safety. He was a real example of the service a woman or child in one of these parties can expect with perfect safety and freedom from care. The Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursions are comfortable and attractive personalities who are well equipped with maps, brochures, and many other items. They are also well equipped with maps, brochures, and many other items. They are also well equipped with maps, brochures, and many other items.

that's a peach of a shiner he handed you. It would take a portrait painter like Sargent to touch it up properly. By the way, I see the racing season is coming on. Did you notice that dark horse they're fixing up?"

BOO HEAR DAVIES
TALK ON CANADA

Three hundred men and women gathered at the Intercolonial Club house on Dudley street, Roxbury, to hear the address of Sir Louis H. Davies, senior judge of the Supreme Court of Canada and Deputy Governor-General of Canada and Deputy Governor-in-Chief of the Northwest Territories, principal guest at the annual banquet.

Greater friendship and closer intimacy between the United States and Canada was the keynote of the address.

Both the State and city were represented, among the guests being Lieutenant Governor Robert Luce, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Congressman Philip F. Campbell of Kansas, Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, Samuel J. Elder, Joseph J. Corbett, Royal Chief William Ferris of the Scottish Charitable Society, President Richard J. Lane and Vice-President Bartholomew J. Brickley of the Charitable Irish Society, President W. Bentley of the

Y. E. Harris of the Canadian Club in Boston and Captain Charles R. McCullough. When Sir Davies arose to speak the applause lasted several minutes while the orchestra rendered "The Maple Leaf." Speaking he said that the question of reciprocity, one that was uppermost in the minds of the people of both countries, was one that was not discussed in public by the judges of the courts of Canada and therefore he would refrain from speaking on the subject, though dear to his heart, and one that he believed was of interest to every one in the hall.

NEW YORK, May 1—Two chestnut-colored slaves were made yesterday in the case of Harry K. Brier, slave of Stamford Village, who is fighting to obtain his release from the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan. One was made by the State and the other by Charles T. Shearn, counsel for the State.

for Thaw. The federal grand jury, upon which has fallen the task of trying to prevent Thaw's release, obtained as counsel former District Attorney William Travers Jerome. Mr. Jerome began his duties immediately. Thaw's counsel, entirely unexpectedly, served an order upon the grand jury to appear at 10 o'clock, before whom Thaw is to be brought in White Plains next Monday to show cause why jury shall not pass upon his client's sanity. Such a trial would tend to relieve Justice Keena of most anxiety of responsibility and greatly enhance Thorne's chance to regain his liberty, as the expert testimony will be so technical in character that the lay man is not likely to stick the chair from the wheel.

The motion comes up for argument tomorrow. Keena's lawyer, Joseph J. Keating, is confident that the jury will find Thorne sane.

It will be vigorously opposed by Mr. Letourneau, who will then make his first public appearance in the case since he successfully opposed Thaw's release in the habes corpus proceedings before Justice Mills in 1909.

1.—BACK TO THE MINES. After their quick escape from the dread salt mines of Siberia, and their equally quick re-capture by the crafty villain, the heroes are once more on their way back to their living jump. This time, however, Desmond, finding it hard to climb alone into the mine, while the forces of Russia abandon her hero and run away with him to Europe.

2.—PLANNING ESCAPE. Although apparently helpless in the mine, Claude does not give up hope of getting out and re-joining his beautiful Desmond. When he sees a lot of salt in a chute ready for shipment, he resolves to do the Russian aspect that a stranger is being sent out of the country. It is a desperate hope, but Claude can see no other way in which to get away from the mine, dear.

3.—DOWN THE CHUTE. The Russian workers in the mines now release the catch and the huge pile of salt slides down into the bags ready to receive it. Claude is hidden in the salt, and little does the Russian suspect that a stranger is being sent out of the country. It is a desperate hope, but Claude can see no other way in which to get away from the mine, dear.

4.—ON THE WAGON. In the sack Claude feels himself being carried out and then hoisted up in the air. He knows now that he is on one of the wagons which carry the salt out of the mine, and hopes that soon he will be in a friendly country where the people will accept him in the arms of the victor, or at least for which he has probably paid the government.

5.—THE PALACE OF THE Czar. Now Claude faintly hears the hoarse voices of soldiers talking of the Czar and guesses that instead of reaching a quiet place, he has little more to expect from anyone who discovers him in a royal abode, as he will undoubtedly be taken for a daring thief.

6.—DISCOVERY. Strong hands enter the sack in which Claude is hidden. He feels himself picked up, the bag is turned inside down, and the salt shakes out. As Claude falls he into the palace of the Czar's bath, and the soldiers have discovered him. His fate in the royal palace will be shown in tomorrow's picture.

MASSACHUSETTS IS FOR CHAMP CLARK

Champ Clark, Speaker of the National House of Representatives, won a brilliant victory in the first Presidential preference primary ever held in Massachusetts.

His defeat of Governor Wilson was decisive.

The result of the vote in this state was of prime importance, because of the fact that it was recognized all over the country that the Old Bay State would probably mark the turning point of the campaign.

It has done so, and the impetus given to the campaign of the Speaker will be felt from now until he goes into the Baltimore convention the choice of the majority of the Democrats of the country as their candidate for the high office of President.

The fight in Massachusetts was a squarely cut one. The two men who were the candidates before the Democrats of this State had their respective merits placed before the people in an able manner.

Governor Wilson had the advantage, even, over Speaker Clark in this regard, because he was able to come to Boston and make a plea in his own behalf, while Speaker Clark was unable to make the trip because of his duties at Washington.

The address made by Governor Wilson in Tremont Temple, Boston, was listened to by a large audience. He appeared to have made a pleasing impression on the audience, but when the vote was counted in Boston, it was found that Speaker Clark had beaten him more than two to one.

Had Champ Clark, who is one of the best speakers in the country, seen fit to leave his work and enter Massachusetts on a speaking campaign, there is not the least doubt but that he would have received even a larger vote than that cast for him yesterday.

The people of Massachusetts are conservative, thoughtful and they have long memories. They are also readers. They have read of Governor Wilson and have read what Governor Wilson has written. When the Democrats went to the voting booths they remembered that Governor Wilson had attacked men who were held in high esteem as the teachers of the highest form of democracy.

The Democrats of the State also remembered what Champ Clark had done in his twenty years at Washington to strengthen the bonds that hold together the people of the country and to lighten the burdens that press upon the shoulders of the people.

When the cool, critical mind of the Massachusetts Democrat compared Clark, the man of the people, with Wilson, the man with Tory proclivities, they made their decision. That decision was in favor of Clark.

The verdict of Massachusetts upon these two men will have tremendous weight throughout the country. The people of the country know that this state does not do things hastily and the judgment of the state is respected. It must be gratifying to Speaker Clark to know that his vote came from all sections of the state—that it came from the city and from the small town; that it came from the man of the business realm and from the man who works in the shop and factory.

The Democrats of this state realized their responsibility when they voted yesterday, because they knew that in all probability the man they chose would be the next Democratic candidate for President.

The Democrats of the country have before them a great opportunity to place at the head of this nation a man whose heart beats in sincere sympathy with the needs of the great mass of people.

The AMERICAN feels that the party will prove equal to the important task. What they did in Massachusetts will impart confidence to the people of the whole country that they are fully prepared to carry out this great undertaking.

Dorothy Dix Writes

—OF—
The Price We Pay for the Privilege of Belonging to a Family

By DOROTHY DIX

Inc to do and nobody and nothing belonging to her? Horrid! Well, then, pay the price for what you have without grumbling.

And you, mother. What a tale of woe you have to tell about being tied down at home with your babies. You can't go out to theaters and parties and the children are always tracking in dirt and spilling things, and mending up the room, and you can't walk across the floor without stumbling over a toy train, or a doll, and there isn't five minutes in the day that there isn't a call for "Moo-oo-oo." You are tired with self pity as you contemplate your lot. But what about the feet of little arms about your neck, what about the nuzzling of dowdy heads against your breast, what about the millions of fresh interests that children bring into your life?

Worth the Cost

All of the work and the worry is just the price you pay for the privilege of having a family, and believe me, it is worth what it costs. You can't have your cake and eat it, too. You can't have the freedom to go and come, the leisure, or, perhaps, as the case has lately been, the health, but would you trade off your nursery for a motor car or a trip to Palm Beach? No, not if the whole United States treasury were thrown in to boot. Think that square, and don't begudge the cost tag of motherhood.

And you, oh wife, how often do we have to listen to your grumbling about your husband? He's got funny, funny ways, it's cantankerous at times. He's more interested in the stock market than he is in them; and he isn't a bit like the hero of romance that you thought you were marrying. It is true that he is a good provider, and that you're got the best home and the best clothes of any woman in your set, but hasn't he a few times got you trying to red flag a mad bull to him and of taking firing lines to keep from stepping on the corns of his prejudices.

Just console yourself with the reflection that when you have to rub your husband's fur the right way you are paying the price for having a husband, for having a strong arm on which to lean, for somebody to stand between you and the world, goodness knows, being married is no such fun for a woman, but, all things considered, matrimony is about the best job going, and it makes it an easier job if the wife, instead of magnifying her husband's peculiarities, will just strike a balance and realize that condoning the crankiness is the price she pays for not being an old maid.

And you, Mr. Husband! Oh, of course, your wife isn't the tyrannical perfecting you told her to be before you married her. She has lost her fire and her complexion, and she isn't as bright and vivacious as she used to be, and she's got no more light than a bare, and she's got all sorts of foolish ways that you have to remember her to respect to keep her from going into hysterics. Matrimony isn't all cakes and ale for a man any more than it is for a woman, but you know she'd die for you if it would do you any good, and there isn't a better guy home than yours, so never look after children, and that boy and girl of yours—say, they are wonderful!

What would you take to be a loveless old bachelor, without a home, without children, without any real vital thing to work for? That's worth thinking a good many times before coming for the 1912. Think with you score with life without trying to work on the barren.

We should all be happier if we were married.

WITH OTHER PEOPLE'S PECULIARITIES IN THE PRICE WE PAY FOR THE PRIVILEGE OF BELONGING TO A FAMILY.
